DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

Claims 1, 2, and 5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Phillips et al.

As per claim 1, Phillips et al. teaches a combined air conditioning/showcase control arrangement wherein a centralized control reduces an indoor set temperature according to a load on the showcase (see for example column 2, line 67 – column 3, line 7; column 3, lines 25-28; and column 7, lines 14-15 and 21-25). Phillips does not teach the specifics of the refrigerant flow passages, however official notice is taken that these are common and well-known features of air conditioning and refrigerated showcase systems that would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to apply to the system of Phillips et al. for the purpose of providing refrigerant to the various cooling means.

As per claim 2, Phillips et al. further teaches detecting a loaded condition of the showcases' compressor (see column 1, lines 66-68 relating the load state of the showcases to compressor load, as well as the lines listed above regarding claim 1).

As per claim 5, Phillips et al. further teaches operating the refrigerating machine and air conditioner in order to provide energy savings (column 3, lines 29-31 and 36-41; column 7, lines 14-15 and 21-25). Again, Phillips does not teach the specifics of the refrigerant flow passages, however official notice is taken that these are common and well-known features of air conditioning and refrigerated showcase systems that would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to apply to the system of Phillips et al. for the purpose of providing refrigerant to the various cooling means.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 3, 4, and 6-10 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.
